THE BULLETIN.

Publication Office, Bulletin Building, Washington Avenue.

For President, 1872,
JAMES R. DOOLITTLE,
OF WISCONSIN.

Subject to the decision of the national democratic convention.

[The New York World on Senator Doolittle.]

"His record is so consistent and uninterrupted that it may be likened to a straight line drawn across a puzzle—a clear beam, unswerving by the fluctuating atmosphere of American politics, through the past twenty years."

From a speech by Senator Doolittle, delivered at Detroit, in 1869.

"Let us not be the South as Camillus proposed to do to the people of Latium after they had rebelled against Rome and had been put down by the arms of that power. When the question arose in the senate: 'What shall be done with Latium and the people of Latium?' there were some even there who shouted: 'Constitute their property, make them slaves.' There was, however, none that day who would have made them slaves to their own slaves. But Camillus, whose speech of a single line has made his name immortal, said: 'No nation, let us make them fellow-citizens, and thus add to the power and glory of Rome.' Let us, now that they have laid down the arms of their rebellion and have renewed their allegiance to the union and the flag, make the southern people our fellow-citizens, and thus add to the power and glory of the nation."

Even the New York Tribune is ashamed at the developments of the Hodge de-falcation and exclaims: "The system which permits such frauds to continue, uninterrupted, so long, is monstrous! In how many other sets of accounts has there been equal looseness?"

European advice say that the Internationals are now so great in Germany that Bismarck, in alluding to the subject, remarked that political cares have given place to the cares of socialism, and that the latter disturb him more than the former.

"The cholera does not seem to relax its hold or abate its force in its march over Europe. A telegram from Berlin, which we published reported that the disease increases in virulence in the famous old city of Königsberg, where the ratio of deaths has increased from fifty to seventy and even eighty per cent. For the week ending last Sunday three hundred deaths from cholera are recorded.

A Mississippi gentleman complains that he has to pay a tax of one hundred and twenty dollars a year, whereas in 1860, when he was worth ten dollars to his one now, he had only to pay twelve dollars taxes. This benighted individual forgets evidently that he is now living under the best government the sun ever set on.

A colored gentleman at Macon, Georgia, voted a Democratic ticket for the first time in his life, and was the happiest man in the State when he did it. To show his sincerity in the matter, he had a ticket printed specially for the occasion, thirty-two inches long and eight inches wide.
He wanted people to understand where Tom Horan stood on the political questions of the day.
